The National Association of Printing Ink Manufacturers (NAPIM), which is the only national trade association for the printing ink industry in the USA, held the annual convention at Sonoma, California, on April 20-23, 2018.

During the convention, NAPIM awards selective participants as Printing Ink Pioneers. This year, Gene Cassidy, Senior Manager-Corporate Accounts, of LAWTER Inc (a subsidiary of Harima Chemicals Group Inc.), received the award for his contribution to the printing ink industry.

It is unusual that NAPIM presents the prestigious award to a raw material supplier, such as LAWTER. This honor proves he has provided remarkable service for many years. "It is an extreme honor to be the recipient of such a prestigious award. During my forty years of employment at Lawter, I have had the pleasure of working with a long list of talented people, that made my job very enjoyable and rewarding", said Gene Cassidy.

Harima Chemicals Group, including LAWTER, will continue contributing to the printing ink industry all over the world by supplying quality raw materials and developing innovative products.
